

THE PHANTOM OF THE VAULT

THE WIDGETEERS Episode: "The Phantom of the Vault"
Written by [Your Name] ACT I: THE SETUP (0:00 - 2:30)

SCENE 01 INT. BRAVO'S BEDROOM - DAY

A vibrant, slightly messy bedroom, filled with half-finished science projects and comic books. BRAVO, a sharp, confident 10-year-old with tousled hair and bright eyes, is sprawled on his bed, fixated on a large, futuristic flat-screen TV. The screen is filled with a NEWS REPORTER, a woman with perfectly coiffed hair, standing dramatically in front of a police-taped bank. Behind the reporter, a grainy SECURITY FOOTAGE clip plays on a loop. It shows a massive, heavy VAULT DOOR, made of thick steel, slowly, creakily swinging open on its own. The hinges groan with an almost supernatural sound. Then, several plump BAGS OF MONEY, glowing faintly, visibly lift off the floor inside the vault. They float out, hovering eerily in mid-air, and drift gracefully through the bank's main lobby and right out of frame. It's an impossible, gravity-defying sight. Bravo leans closer to the screen, his eyebrows knitted in intense concentration. The reporter gestures wildly, emphasizing her points.

REPORTER

(breathless, dramatic)

...another impossible bank heist!
Witnesses report seeing nothing,
only empty air, as millions
vanished!

REPORTER

(pointing emphatically at the screen)

Security footage confirms a heavy vault door simply creaking open,
as if by an unseen hand. Then,
bags of money... simply floated away!

The footage loops again, showing the ghostly money bags. A visual gag: one bag bumps lightly into a pillar, then rights itself and continues floating.

Bravo's eyes narrow. He scribbles a quick note in a small, glowing notepad he keeps beside his bed.

REPORTER

(lowering her voice conspiratorially)

Police arrived to find all entrances to the bank completely locked. Sealed! No forced entry.
No visible suspects!

BRAVO

(to himself, intrigued)

No suspects, huh? That's definitely interesting. And a little... spooky.

REPORTER

(shivering dramatically on screen)

Could this be the work of... a phantom? A ghost of the vault itself? Local authorities are baffled!

Bravo snorts, dismissing the idea of ghosts with a flick of his hand. He hops off his bed, already brimming with purpose.

SCENE 02 INT. BRAVO'S SECRET LAB - DAY (0:45)

Bravo strides purposefully to his closet. He opens the seemingly ordinary wooden door, but instead of clothes, it reveals a gleaming, chrome SECRET PASSAGE. It's a vertical PIPE SLIDE, winding down into darkness. He grins, a flash of adventurous spirit in his eyes. Bravo slides in, letting out a whoop of delight as he disappears down the chute. He lands smoothly in a padded alcove in his high-tech, underground LAB. The lab is a marvel of flashing lights, computer monitors, and whirring gadgets. PIPi, a small, spherical sentient drone with a single glowing eye, zips around him, emitting happy beeps. Bravo goes straight to a bank of monitors, his fingers flying across a holographic keyboard. He initiates a video call. On the main screen, TANGO, a more cautious, slightly timid 10-year-old, is visible. He is completely enveloped in his bedsheets, a tiny, terrified sliver of his face peeking out. He looks like a crumpled ghost himself. PiPi hovers beside Bravo's head, tilting its eye in confusion at Tango's state.

BRAVO

(energetic, typing)

Tango, turn on your monitor! We have a new case. Another impossible bank robbery just happened!

TANGO

*(voice muffled,
shivering under sheets)*

No, no, no! I saw the news. Floating money? Unseen forces? That's definitely ghosts, Bravo!

BRAVO

(rolling his eyes, a playful smirk)

Ghosts? Really, Tango? It's always a logical explanation. Always!

TANGO

(peeking out, eyes wide with fear)

But... but the reporter said it was beyond human comprehension! I'm petrified of ghosts, Bravo! I can't do this one.

Bravo walks over to a cluttered shelf, filled with various dusty, antique scientific instruments. He picks up an old, boxy EMF (Electromagnetic Field) reader. It's got a large, clunky needle and a speaker grille. He blows a puff of dust off it, making PiPi sneeze a tiny, mechanical puff of air.

BRAVO

(confidently, brandishing the EMF reader)

Nonsense! See this? An EMF reader.
I'll prove it's just some elaborate trick.

BRAVO

(patting the dusty device)

No spooky specters, only science!
Come on, let's go. This case won't solve itself!

TANGO

*(groaning dramatically,
pulling sheets tighter)*

Ugh! You always say that. Fine, but if I see a single phantom, I'm running home!

Bravo chuckles, already heading for a discreet exit.
PiPi zooms after him, ready for adventure. Tango, after a moment of internal debate, reluctantly slides
out from under his covers.

SCENE 03 EXT. FIRST NATIONAL BANK - DAY (2:15)

The scene is chaotic. Bright yellow POLICE TAPE crisscrosses the entrance to the "First National Bank." A group of uniformed POLICE OFFICERS stand behind the tape, looking incredibly nervous and uncomfortable. One officer is actively jumping at shadows. Another clutches a flashlight despite it being broad daylight. BRAVO, TANGO, and PIPI (in its stealth mode, disguised as a common pigeon) arrive in their civilian clothes. Tango is still visibly shaking, his eyes darting around. Bravo, ever the calm leader, surveys the scene. He notices the officers are completely preoccupied with their own fears, whispering about "unexplained phenomena."

POLICE OFFICER 1

*(whispering intensely to Officer
2)*

I swear I heard a ghostly moan from inside! This is definitely beyond my jurisdiction, Sergeant.

POLICE OFFICER 2

(sweating, looking pale)

Mine too, Jenkins! We're waiting for special reinforcements. The kind that handle... ethereal entities.

TANGO

(nervously, clutching Bravo's arm)

See? Even the police are scared!
We should wait too, Bravo.

BRAVO

(smirking, gesturing)

Perfect. That means they won't notice us. Come on, while they're busy imagining things.

Bravo subtly pushes aside a section of police tape.
Tango reluctantly follows, stumbling slightly. PiPi, still disguised as a pigeon, waddles past the officers with exaggerated stealth, then zips through an open window, transforming back into its drone form once inside. The boys slip past the distracted cops and enter the eerie, silent bank.

ACT II: THE STRUGGLE (2:30 - 7:30)

SCENE 04 INT. FIRST NATIONAL BANK - DAY (3:00)

The bank interior is dimly lit and feels incredibly cold, despite the warm day outside. Shadows stretch long and menacingly. Dust motes dance in the slivers of light. Tango jumps at every creak of the old building, every shadow on the wall. He clutches his chest, breathing shallowly. Bravo, unperturbed, pulls out his dusty EMF reader from his backpack. He switches it on with a confident click. The device hums to life, its needle resting at zero.

BRAVO

(confidently, sweeping the air)

See, Tango? Nothing here. Just normal, non-spooky electromagnetic fields.

Suddenly, the EMF reader's needle doesn't just twitch – it violently SLAMS to the maximum, off the charts! It blares a loud, grating alarm sound, startling both boys. The device vibrates intensely in Bravo's hand. Tango SCREAMS, jumping ten feet in the air, eyes wide as saucers. He immediately tries to hide behind a potted plant that's barely bigger than his head.

TANGO

(high-pitched, pointing with a shaking finger)

G-G-GHOSTS! I told you! It's real!
We need to leave, now!

BRAVO

(wide-eyed with shock, then quickly composing himself)

Whoa! Okay, that's... unexpected.
But still, it's just a strong EM field. Not a ghost!

Bravo quickly scans the room, ignoring Tango's whimpers from behind the plant. The EMF reader continues to blare. He traces the signal, moving slowly. He notices a large, industrial AIR VENT high on the wall, near the vault door. He holds the EMF meter closer to it. The signal goes absolutely WILD, the needle vibrating so hard it almost flies off its pivot. PiPi buzzes excitedly, its eye glowing brightly.

BRAVO

(thoughtful, tapping the vent)

If the doors were locked, they had to get in another way. And this vent... it's humming with energy!

TANGO

(peeking out, still terrified)

Humming with spooky, ghostly energy! I can practically feel the ectoplasm!

BRAVO

(ignoring Tango's dramatics, focused)

This EMF reading is too specific for general spooky interference.
Something is definitely using this vent system.

Bravo carefully turns off the blaring EMF reader, plunging the bank back into unnerving silence. He examines the vent, a thoughtful expression on his face. PiPi lands on his shoulder, beeping inquisitively.

SCENE 05 EXT. FIRST NATIONAL BANK - DAY (4:15)

Bravo, Tango (still looking haunted), and PiPi (back to pigeon disguise) sneak back out of the bank, just as a ridiculously flashy, heavily modified VAN pulls up to the police line. It's painted in a psychedelic swirl of greens and blues, with a giant, glowing
"GHOST CATCHERS INC." logo on the side. It has roof-mounted radar dishes, a massive fog machine exhaust, and an old siren. It looks like the cartoon love-child of the Scooby-Doo Mystery Machine and the Ghostbusters' Ecto-1. The police officers immediately perk up, looking relieved.

TANGO

(whispering urgently)

We need to figure out how they're doing this. What's the pattern for the robberies?

BRAVO

(chuckles, nodding towards the van)

Looks like the 'professionals' have finally arrived. Time for us to do some real work.

Bravo and Tango quickly blend into the crowd, PiPi waddling discreetly beside them. The "Ghost Catchers" burst out of their van, armed with oversized, clunky gadgets, dramatically marching towards the bank entrance. They look completely ridiculous. The boys share a knowing glance.

SCENE 06 MONTAGE - VARIOUS LOCATIONS - DAY (4:45)

A fast-paced, split-screen MONTAGE begins. LEFT SCREEN: INT. CITY ARCHIVES LIBRARY - DAY Tango is surrounded by enormous, tottering piles of dusty, ancient books and rolled-up blueprints. He wears a pair of absurdly large, old-fashioned reading glasses that keep sliding down his nose. He frantically cross-references old city maps with newspaper clippings, sneezing violently every few seconds from the dust. He looks like a tiny, determined librarian. A visual gag: a stack of books wobbles precariously, nearly toppling him. He yelps. RIGHT SCREEN: INT. BRAVO'S SECRET LAB - DAY Bravo, wearing a high-tech welding mask that makes his head look gigantic, is soldering intricate wires onto a pair of sleek, spare goggles. Sparks fly dramatically. PiPi hovers nearby, holding up a tiny, glowing circuit board for Bravo, then accidentally bumps his elbow, making him jump. Bravo lets out a small yelp of surprise. He quickly integrates his old EMF reader's core components into the goggles, transforming them into a sophisticated, futuristic visor. PiPi cleans up a stray glob of solder with a tiny mechanical arm. Suddenly, a lightbulb icon appears simultaneously above both Tango's and Bravo's heads. They both have a "Eureka!" moment, their faces lighting up with understanding.

TANGO

*(excitedly, into his communicator,
blowing dust)*

Bravo, I found it! All the robberies! They follow a hidden path!

BRAVO

*(eagerly, into his communicator,
adjusting visor)
Tango, I've got a theory! They're using some kind of concentrated electromagnetic
field to move the money! Their voices overlap, a flurry of rapid-fire
discoveries. PiPi zooms between the two screens, beeping
in enthusiastic agreement, as if it already knew. SCENE
07 INT. BRAVO'S
SECRET LAB - DAY
(6:00) Tango, now
back in the lab and
less dusty,
triumphantly unrolls
a massive, vintage
CITY MAP across the main table. It's old and slightly yellowed, with intricate lines and faded street names.
PiPi projects a holographic overlay
onto the map,
highlighting the locations of the previous bank*

robberies. They form a distinct, winding line. TANGO (tracing with a laser pointer)

See? All the targeted banks are connected by this old, forgotten network of underground tunnels.
And giant industrial air vents!

TANGO

(pointing dramatically)

They're using the vents as a secret highway, then generating an EM field right at the vault!

BRAVO

(nodding, connecting the dots)

That explains the EMF readings!
And why the money looked like it was floating. It was being levitated magnetically!

TANGO

(pointing to a final, isolated bank)

And there's only one bank left on their route: Murphy's Bank!
They're going there next!

Bravo holds up his newly finished invention - a sleek, silver and black EMF VISION VISOR. It has glowing blue lenses and looks incredibly high-tech. PiPi hovers around it, giving it a thumbs-up (a small mechanical hand extends from its side).

BRAVO

(grinning, putting on the visor)

Then it's time to gear up, Tango!
Let's show these "phantoms" who the real problem solvers are.

Bravo strikes a heroic pose. Tango, a flicker of courage in his eyes, nods in agreement.

ACT III: THE CLIMAX (7:30 - 9:00)

SCENE 08 INT./EXT. MURPHY'S BANK - NIGHT (7:15)

A dynamic, flashy TRANSFORMATION SEQUENCE shows Bravo and Tango suiting up. Holographic interfaces appear, high-tech costumes snap into place, and their specialized vehicles - sleek, electric hover-bikes - materialize. They are now THE WIDGETEERS! Bravo, in his red and silver suit, wears the EMF Vision Visor. Tango, in his blue and gold suit, looks slightly more nervous but determined. PiPi transforms into a compact, super-fast recon drone. They speed through the city streets, a blur of neon lights, heading straight for MURPHY'S BANK. They burst through the double doors, dramatically skidding to a halt inside the lobby. The bank is dark and eerily quiet. Bravo activates his EMF visor. Through the glowing lenses, two LUMINOUS, electromagnetic SILHOUETTES suddenly appear in the middle of the room. They are vaguely human-shaped, shimmering and distorted, hiding beneath a massive, glittering INVISIBILITY CLOAK. The cloak itself is almost perfectly invisible, except for a faint distortion around the edges.

BRAVO

(through visor, excited)

There they are! Two of them! With a powerful electromagnetic
cloaking device!

TANGO

(shocked, pointing)

Wow! So not ghosts! Just really clever criminals!

The Widgeteers jump into action! They try to tackle the invisible thieves. A chaotic, slapstick STRUGGLE ensues. Bravo lunges, but his hands pass right through the shimmering cloak. Tango tries a sweeping kick, only to trip over his own feet, nearly colliding with an invisible opponent. The invisible figures deftly dodge and weave, their glowing silhouettes briefly flashing in and out of Bravo's vision. In the heat of the brawl, one of the invisible thieves lands a lucky (or unlucky for Bravo) swing. Bravo's new EMF Visor is KNOCKED CLEAN OFF HIS FACE. It sails through the air in slow motion, then SMASHES into a thousand pieces on the marble floor. Sparks fly, lights fizzle out. Bravo's vision returns to normal, but the thieves are once again completely invisible.

BRAVO

(dismayed, scrambling)

Oh no! My visor! Now we can't see them!

The thieves, seizing their opportunity, make a dash for the exit. They move with surprising speed, a mere shimmering distortion in the air.

SCENE 09 EXT. MURPHY'S BANK - NIGHT (8:00)

The Widgeteers burst out of the bank doors just in time to see the robbers jump onto an old, rusty GETAWAY MOTORBIKE. Because of the invisibility cloak, it looks to the terrified BYSTANDERS (who are now screaming and running away) like a GHOST MOTORCYCLE driving itself through the streets! The bike roars to life. With the visor destroyed, the Widgeteers are temporarily blind to their enemies. Bravo scans the street frantically. PiPi hovers, its eye spinning, trying to lock onto something.

TANGO

*(frustrated, watching the "ghost"
bike speed off)*

They're getting away! What do we do now, Bravo? We can't see them!

BRAVO

(eyes widening, a flash of inspiration)

Wait! Look at the bike! It's old and rusty!

Bravo points. The motorbike is emitting thick, dark, noxious EXHAUST FUMES that billow out behind it, forming a murky cloud. It's a highly visible, chemical trail of pollution. PiPi immediately locks onto it.

BRAVO

(to PiPi, with urgency)

PiPi, switch your sensors! Analyze and track that chemical trail! The polluted gases!

PIPI

(beeping affirmatively, eye glowing green)

BEEP-BOOP!

PiPi zips forward, transforming into a glowing green beacon, leading the Widgeteers on a high-speed chase through the darkened city streets. Their hover-bikes kick into overdrive, leaving streaks of light behind them.

SCENE 10 EXT. ABANDONED FLOUR MILL - NIGHT (8:45)

PiPi expertly follows the exhaust trail, leading the boys to the outskirts of the city. The chase ends at a massive, dilapidated, ABANDONED OLD FLOUR MILL. Its windows are broken, and the brickwork is crumbling. The "ghost" motorbike, still completely invisible, is parked haphazardly outside the main, rusted door. The exhaust fumes are still faintly visible around it.

TANGO

(looking at the immense, dark building)

Okay, we found them. But how are we supposed to find invisible enemies in there? Without your visor?

BRAVO

(a confident, mischievous smile)

spreading across his face)

Sometimes, Tango, the best solutions aren't high-tech. It's time to go old school.

Bravo winks at Tango, who looks utterly confused.
PiPi, understanding, zips ahead.

SCENE 11 INT. ABANDONED FLOUR MILL - NIGHT (9:15)

Inside the flour mill, the air is thick with dust. The invisible thieves, MUFFIN and CHURRO, are tiptoeing stealthily across the creaky wooden floor. Their shimmering cloaks make faint distortions in the dust motes as they move. They're trying to escape through another unseen exit. Bravo silently signals PiPi. The drone, with surprising strength, grabs a large, ripped BAG OF OLD FLOUR with its mechanical claws. The bag tears further as PiPi struggles slightly. A visual gag: a small puff of flour explodes from the bag. PiPi then flies up to the massive, dormant CEILING FANS. It hovers directly over the unsuspecting thieves.

MUFFIN
(O.S.)

(whispering, unseen)

Almost out, Churro. They'll never find us in this dust.

CHURRO
(O.S.)

(whispering, unseen)

Good thing we brought our super-secret invisibility cloaks!
They're foolproof!

With a silent command from Bravo, PiPi releases the flour bag. A massive, white CLOUD OF FLOUR EXPLODES downwards, filling the entire room. The dust settles, covering everything in a fine, white powder. Suddenly, a hilariously shaped, FLOUR-COVERED BLOB with two distinct pairs of legs and a faint outline of two heads is perfectly visible in the middle of the room. It's MUFFIN and CHURRO, now comically coated in white! They sneeze loudly, one after the other, sending little puffs of flour into the air.

MUFFIN

(coughing, flour-dusted)

A-choo! What was that?! I can't see!

CHURRO

(squeezing eyes shut, flour pouring off him)

Oh, my eyes! It's like a winter wonderland... but itchy! A-choo!

The Widgeteers emerge from the dust, grinning. They grab a long, industrial ROPE that was coiled against a wall. They run circles around the confused, flour-covered thieves, who stumble blindly into each other. Muffin and Churro are quickly and tightly tied up. Bravo triumphantly rips off the flour-covered cloak, revealing the two slightly pathetic, ordinary-looking criminals: MUFFIN, a scrawny man with a tiny mustache, and CHURRO, a rounder, bumbling fellow. They blink in the sudden reveal.

BRAVO

(triumphantly, pulling out his communicator)

No ghosts here, just two very dusty criminals! Time to call the police!

TANGO

(beaming, high-fiving Bravo)

Looks like our old school tactics worked perfectly! Take that, invisible thieves!

PiPi buzzes around the tied-up criminals, playfully booping Churro's flour-dusted nose.

RESOLUTION (10:00 - 11:00)

SCENE 12 INT. ABANDONED FLOUR MILL / EXT. MILL - NIGHT (10:15)

Soon after, actual POLICE OFFICERS (not the scared ones from before) arrive at the mill, looking much more competent. They haul Muffin and Churro away in handcuffs, still covered in flour, muttering about their ruined invisibility cloak. The Widgeteers watch them go, feeling victorious. The camera lingers inside the now-empty, quiet old mill. The only sounds are the creaking timbers. Bravo's smashed EMF READER, still slightly functional, lies forgotten on the dusty floor amidst the flour. Suddenly, a transparent, classic-looking CARTOON GHOST - complete with a sheet-like body, two friendly eyes, and a wavy tail - floats nonchalantly right through the solid brick wall. It drifts casually, almost lazily, past the forgotten EMF device.

The EMF reader's needle, previously dormant, violently PINS to the maximum, sparking lightly and emitting a faint, almost inaudible WHIRRING SOUND. The ghost, completely oblivious, phases through the opposite wall without a care in the world, disappearing into the night. As the ghost phases through, we hear BRAVO'S VOICE, confident and reassuring, fading into the distance from outside the mill.

BRAVO (O.S.)

(confidently, slightly muffled)

See, Tango? I told you! There's absolutely no such thing as ghosts! Zero scientific proof!

The camera holds on the sparking EMF reader for a beat, then FADES TO BLACK.

THE END